

Object: Sarajevo City Hall

BASIC INFORMATION

The Sarajevo City Hall, located near Baščaršija, is one of the most beautiful and representative buildings from the Austro-Hungarian period. The project was the work of Aleksandar Wittek, who designed the seat of the Sarajevo city government in the pseudo-Moorish style, which is an architectural fusion of East and West. Since its opening on April 20, 1896, the City Hall has been the building of the city administration of Sarajevo. After World War II, until 1949, the City Hall served as the Sarajevo District Court and the seat of the Bosnian and Herzegovinian Assembly. After that, the City Hall became the Sarajevo City Library, that is, the National and University Library of BiH. During the last war, on the night between August 25th and 26th, 1992, the City Hall was set on fire, and almost 90 percent of the library fund was destroyed. The reconstruction of the City Hall began in 1996, and the grand opening of the renovated building took place on May 9, 2014. The City Hall now houses books and manuscripts of exceptional value and rarity and represents a multimedia center of culture, art, and economy of Sarajevo and the state of BiH, where concerts, literary evenings, exhibitions, presentations, conferences, congresses, symposia, receptions, anniversaries, and weddings are held. The Bosnia and Herzegovina Commission to Preserve National Monuments declared the City Hall a national monument of Bosnia and Herzegovina in 2006.
